

Directional Sense: How to Find Your Way Around

by Janet R. Carpman and Myron A. Grant

Foreword by Richard Saul Wurman, Founder TED Conferences
Institute for Human Centered Design, 2012

Questions for Radio & TV Interviewers

- Why did you write this book?
- Does anyone still get lost? Doesn't GPS fix that?
- Why is being lost a bad thing?
- Do some people get lost more than others?
- What does "knowing your way around" really mean?
- Do a lot of people have trouble finding their cars?
- What's the difference between a "sense of direction" and "directional sense"?
- Is there hope for the chronically turned-around?
- What skills do I need in order to find my way around?
- Are signs, maps, directions, etc. always perfect?
- Do people have more trouble finding their way around as they get older?
- Can older people learn to navigate?